ATTENTION: There are no strict standards for colour rendering in wide format printing (unlike offset printing), so if you print the same file on different wide format printers or on different materials, the result will be different across the board. To get the expected colour reproduction of each layout, it is necessary to make a colour sample, only then you can be sure that the colour rendering will be right when printing your files.

Please note that no complaints about the colour rendering of a printed file without an approved colour sample will be accepted.

Orders for graphic design will cease to be accepted 14 days prior to the start of exhibition installation.
